ATTRACTIVE EASTER PROGRAMME IS NOW PRACTICALLY COMPLETE

N N O Ribbon Society and German Club to give dances, Elizabethans to present 'The Rivals'

The week after Easter beginning on the 14th of April will be the fullest in a social way ever known at the College. Such a protracted post-Lenten programme has never been arranged here before, as Finals has always been the spring season for gaieties.

THE WEEK'S PROGRAMME

Tuesday evening, the sixteenth, the Elizabethans will present their annual play, which will be "The Rivals" this year, the performance to be given in Cameron Hall.

On Wednesday, the seventeenth, the baseball game between William and Mary and the University of South Carolina will be played in the afternoon on Cary Field. At eight o'clock in the evening the William and Mary-Randolph-Macon Debate will be held in the Chapel. And at ten o'clock the Easter German will be given in the Gymnasium by the German Club.

Thursday evening the N N O Ribbon Society will give a german in the Gymnasium at nine o'clock; and the cantata under the auspices of the Mathew Whaley School, entitled "The House that Jack Built," will most probably be during the same week, which taken as a whole will rival strongly the glamour that has in past years hovered around Finals.

BUSY WEEKS IN BASEBALL

The next two weeks will keep the baseball men on the jump every minute. Fredericksburg will play here on the 8th, and the Academy will open its season by a game with the College on Easter Monday. On Tuesday evening following the nine leaves for its five day trip North, where they will encounter the stiffest games of the season. Returning Sunday, the latter will receive the Union Seminary in what promises to be a stiff game. South Carolina, the big attraction of the season, plays two days later, and on the ensuing Saturday the championship season opens with Hampden-Sidney on the home grounds.

The team is now starting to play real ball, and by the time the championship season opens, there will be no walk-overs for any of the opposing teams in the league.

WHO'S HOW AND WHY AT THE VENERABLE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM & MARY

Something of the Great and Super-Great in these Parts. Number V, Doc. H. Franklin Marrow

Doc Marrow, genius and species unknown, habitat the Science Hall.

Doc (alias H. Franklin) Marrow is especially prized by this Institution; being the only specimen of his kind in captivity. He was born and reared in Hampton, or to be more concise, born in a house and reared in the streets and mud-puddles of that metropolis. He is a complex molecule, with the elements so mixed in him that Nature might stand up and say to all the world "Would he were a man." On chemical analysis he is found to consist of equal parts of anatomy and mystery with a smattering of football, but brains he has nix. Speaking of football, Doc can do it and will do it, whenever and wherever he can assemble an audience of ducs with the requisite patience and credulity.

PHYSICALLY AND OTHERWISE

Physically and otherwise Doc is a vest-pocket edition of Mt. Vesuvius, spouting sporadically and spontaneously voluminous quantities of gas on whatsoever subject may please his hearers. Mention is made of "hearers" because conversation with Doc consists principally in listening. He is Sir Oracle when he opens his mouth and no duc must quack. When Doc arrived at the classic halls of William and Mary he soon decided that the Science Hall was by far the most classic of all. There he may be seen at any hour, armed with a microscope and a plug of Piper Heidsieck, delving into the mysteries of nature and dispelling the mists that have dimmed the vision of scientists since the days of Aristotle. His most grievous shortcoming is a "burning ambition to become a world renowned surgeon.

IN THE NATURE OF STATISTICS

But it is a firm belief among his many friends here that he will eventually attain this ambition unless overtaken by the march of time, and committed to a home for the aged and infirm. Statisticians, after years of laborious research have calculated that at his present rate of progress he will be graduated February 31, A. D. 2164. However it is the opinion of a few that he

LOCALS LOSE SECOND PRACTICE GAME OF THE SEASON, ON CARY FIELD

The McGuire School's fast little team duplicated the Score of last year here

McGuire's trimmed William and Mary on Saturday in a hotly contested practice game by the score of 6-3, the same tune as last year. Winsbro started the game for the locals, pitching good ball for six innings. Paschall started the scoring for the Preps by drawing a base on balls, stealing second, and romping home on Peachy's overthrow to third. In the third Graves misjudged Winsbro's long drive to left and Winnie reached second and should have come home on Garth's two-base fly over center, but forgetting that two men were down, he waited too long, barely reaching third. McGuire's landed another in the fourth on a base on balls and 2 hits. Geddy saved a run in this inning by a beautiful throw from deep center.

GARTH'S WORK & WINSBRO'S FALL

In the sixth, Garth singled, swiped the second station, reached the left corner on Cogbill's error on Games' bounder, and romped home on a passed ball. In the visitors' half, Joe Hall sailed a yard in air to rob Gregory of a hit.

The seventh period brought woe to the house of Winsbro. A base on balls, Dix's muff of Peachy's throw, two errors by the slabman, and 3 hits netted the Preps three runs. Jones went in with two on bases and two dead, and punched the third, holding the visitors scoreless the rest of the game.

In the ninth the locals nailed the sphere for four hits and two runs, but Paschall's pretty catch on Jones ended the game.

Hulcher, Smith, Paschall and Graves starred for McGuire's, while Garth, Games, Taylor and Dix were the local stars. In spite of the defeat, the boys feel strengthened, having outbatted and outfielded their speedy antagonists.

SUMMARY

W. and M.—Runs: Garth, Hall and Dix; singles, Garth, Hall, Dix (2), Taylor (3). Jones; two-base hits. Winsbro, Garth; stolen bases, Taylor, Hall, Garth (2); bases on balls, off Winsbro (4); struck out, by Winsbro 4, Jones 3; errors 4.

McGuire's—Runs: Paschall (2)

THE BOARD OF VISITORS PROVIDED FOR SOME MUCH NEEDED CHANGES

Dormitories to be Remodeled, Virginia Students to have Free Tuition, and College Advertised

The Board of Visitors at their meeting on last Tuesday transacted some very important business, and provided for some much needed improvements at the College. Those attending were the Honorable Robert M. Hughes, Rector; James N. Stubbs, Esq.; Dr. Thomas H. Barnes; William M. Ellis, Esq.; W. C. L. Taliaferro, Esq.; Hon. Joseph M. Hurt; and Joseph H. Chitwood, Esq.

PROVIDE FOR IMPROVEMENTS

A liberal provision was made for an extensive system of repairs. The dormitories are to be completely altered and overhauled, and walks built through the more inaccessible parts of the grounds.

Steps were taken also to make the advantages of the Institution better known to the State at large, and a resolution was passed to admit hereafter all Virginia students free of any tuition fees.

The question of a summer session of the College in the western part of the State was considered and decided adversely.

DR. TYLER ADDRESSES VIRGINIA ALUMNI

Dr. Lyon G. Tyler attended the meeting of the University of Virginia Alumni, held in Washington, D. C., Saturday evening, and was one of the speakers of the great occasion. The subject of his address was the Relation of the University of Virginia to the College of William and Mary. In his speech Dr. Tyler called the attention of those present to the fact of the origin of the Honor System here, and showed how it was inaugurated at the University by St. George Tucker, an Alumnus of the College.

Other speakers at the banquet were the Honorable Oscar Underwood, the Honorable John Sharp Williams, and the Honorable Joseph W. Bailey.

EASTER HOLIDAY BEGINS THURSDAY

The regular Easter holidays at the College will begin on Thursday afternoon after four o'clock and continue until Tuesday morning. Many young men will spend the week-end at home.

NOT SO SORRY

THE HAT did not comment upon the proposed summer school while it was being agitated by certain of the College authorities, for the reason that the President and certain members of the Faculty seemed to desire it tremendously. It was taken for granted that they knew what was best. But now that the plan has been killed by the Board of Visitors for financial reasons, we would express ourselves as being not so sorry. Indeed we are glad. The money that such an undertaking would necessitate could be more properly spent here at the College; the school would have little meaning placed in Southwest Virginia, and would be but little associated with the College and what it stands for; and the class of men that such a venture would bring to the College during the regular session is not the class that the College needs. There are too many here now who come merely for what they can get in dollars and cents, too many who come to acquire just enough instruction to teach in a common school, just enough to demand a better salary than is to be found between the handles of a plow. What William and Mary needs is more men who come to college for the sake of refinement, and who contribute something to the life of their Alma Mater instead of being parasites who sap her life blood like leeches. She needs more of the much maligned 'college men' who never let their courses interfere with their education, and who serve as a very desirable antidote for 'sharks' and grinds.

As for the money, mentioned, it seems that about a hundred thousand dollars could be easily spent here on necessities without making a show, and decidedly, if the College has any money to plant we should like to see it placed upon the shaded triangular Green of the College of William and Mary, rather than in some hole in Southwest Virginia.

THE PASSING OF A VETERAN

Some time ago THE FLAT HAT announced the supposed death of the old Live Oak at the College Gate. That announcement seems to have been correct. The old tree turns browner each day. Only one green branch is left.

The passing of a veteran has always appealed to the sympathies of men, and this, no less than the greatest, will bring regret to the many, many men who have gone out from its shade into all quarters of the earth to build a name for themselves, and to reflect the glory of their Alma Mater, always with the memory of the dauntless verdure of an ancient Oak that remained green through shine and shadow, summer and winter, peace and war.

Just when this tree was planted can not be discovered. Possibly it has stood there at the Gate for over a century. Another one stood on the opposite side in a relative position, but that one has been gone for many years. Dr. William Barton Rogers spoke of it as being dead in a letter written while on a visit to Williamsburg in Eighteen Hundred and Sixty, in which he described the wreck of the old College. But Dr. Tyler said Friday that when he was inaugurated in Eighteen Hundred and Eighty-eight the other tree still maintained an element of life, thus showing how great is their tenacity, and how loathe they are to leave this life. The present tree has been decrepit for more years than the present memory of man can span, and yet it has existed for this long. Now that death seems to have come, let it be shrouded in ivy and allowed to linger on for as long as it will, a reminder of days that were.

It would be fitting for the Senior Class to plant two more live oaks at the Gate. But the Seniors are so given over to making high grades that few of them can see over their noses.—No disrespect gentlemen.

A TIMELY WORD

At the convocation in the Chapel last Friday morning Dr. Tyler sounded the most needed call that has been made at the College during the year. The short speech that he made emphasized a note that every man in College should take unto himself with a vengeance, and endeavour to maintain. His remarks were on the subject of loyalty and devotion to the College which so well deserves the love and admiration of the entire Country, and it was shown how friends were necessary to the life of an institution, and incidentally how the need of new men to fill the ever-depleted ranks were essential to its continuance. This, he pointed out, was in the power of the Students' making.

They are more able than any other class of people to do service for a college. If each man would make it his chief aim and ambition to bring another man back with him in the Fall there would be more than the College could accommodate.

Dr. Tyler went further and said that although a man might have a feeling against some Professor, he should not carry that to the extent of disliking his Alma Mater. There are very few of us who have not some cause for discontent. No one in the College possibly can say that at some time or other he has not received treatment that he considered unjust. But the College is greater than a few petty dislikes. It is superior to a crotchety Professor. As for our part, there are not enough Professors in the College to kill our love for the old Mother of America, even if they all acted as wild men at the same time.

It was a rather unheard of thing for Mr. Hunter to attempt extra territorial regulation. The College is an independent institution, and is fully old enough to regulate its own affairs, and thoroughly able.

The Management requests that all subscriptions be paid at once.
